THE ROSENER LIBRARY

The library of the Berkeley School is a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rosener in memory of their son Charles John, and of his sister, Fay.

The selection of books was made through the very kind co-operation of Mr. C. Alexander Nelson, Reference Librarian of Columbia College. The Library contains upwards of 1,000 volumes, selected with especial reference to the uses of the school, and consists of valuable books of reference, histories, and works by standard authors in prose and verse, together with such selections from the writers of fiction as are calculated to render the library attractive alike to the day pupils and to the members of the boarding departments.

It is a "red letter day" in the history of any school when it comes into the possession of a good library, and the gratitude of all Berkeley boys is due to the parents of a schoolmate whose brilliant scholarship and purity of character will ever be a stimulus to industry and well-doing to all who knew him.
